JOB LISTINGS

Office: Assembly Committee on Agriculture
Classification: Chief Consultant
Posted: May 20, 2026
Monthly Salary Range: $9,694 to $23,090 (anticipated to be between $10,500 and $15,500)

The Assembly Committee on Agriculture seeks a Chief Consultant. The ideal candidate has meaningful legislative experience, can think critically, make sound judgments, and can thrive under pressure to meet non-negotiable deadlines. Applicants should have an understanding of policy issues affecting California's agricultural industry and food systems, including commodity production and marketing, the California Department of Food and Agriculture and its programs, agricultural commissions and marketing orders, pest management and invasive species, livestock, poultry, and dairy regulation, food safety and labeling, food access and nutrition programs, farmland conservation and land use, expositions and fairs, and other issues within the Committee's jurisdiction. The position requires attention to detail, strong research and writing skills, social intelligence, personal organization, and effective communication.

Responsibilities include analyzing proposed legislation, negotiating amendments, briefing the Committee Chair, Assembly members, and staff, planning informational and oversight hearings, and staffing bills within the Committee's jurisdiction on behalf of the Chair. The Chief Consultant must also manage the committee's administration, working with the Committee Secretary to plan hearings and set agendas.

The salary range for this classification is $9,694-$23,090 per month. It is anticipated the candidate will be hired between $10,500 to $15,500 per month depending on experience. Significant relevant experience performing like-duties in the California Legislature is required to reach the higher end of the salary range.
